Ms. Julita Tellei Guest Speaker for HI 189

Inset: Ms. Julita Tellei discussing the Role of Women & Role of Interest Group in Democratic Nation to Palauan History 189 students

On Wednesday, April 12, 2017, HI 189 Palauan History and Culture Class Lecture Series invited Ms. Julita Tellei to speak on the topic of the "Role of Woman and Role of Interest Groups in a Democratic Nation". As an emerging democratic nation, the role of women and role of interest groups is pivotal in affecting public policies for the good of all. Ms. Tellei reiterated in her talk to the students that women's role is not to disregard or dismiss the role of men in the community nor a demand of equality as westerners think, because women in Palau already have had their 'equal rights'. Women who are the "Ourrot" in the clan selects the chiefs of the clan. The same women clan elders (Ourrot) can identify who among the men in the clan would be the best candidate to be the chief of the their respective clan because they observe them while growing up in a community. Women were born to nurture and care for the family members. The role of women is varied; they bear children, do house chores, farming, go to the taro patch and educate the children.

As one of the ten founders of Palau Conservation Society (PCS) and Cofounder of Palau Resource Institute, Ms. Tellei stressed the importance of role of interest groups in a democratic society. Interest groups, a group of people that seeks to influence public policy on the basis of a particular common interest or concerns. Usually non-profit and voluntary in nature whose members seek to influence public policy without seeking political control. Given the social changes in Palau, Ms. Tellei shared with the students that the role of interest group is important for nation building. Promoting the common good is important in a democracy and that women have a distinct role and that is to carry over their role of nurturers in the home to the environment at large.

During a Q & A, students freely shared their concerns about the decline of Palauan population and that less and less women have more than four children; more and more young people are going off-island or joining the U.S. Military. Ms. Tellei encouraged the students to finish their education, work hard and help their family.

Ms. Julita Tellei has a Master's Degree (M.A.) in Public Health with Emphasis on Health Planning. She has more than 2 decades of Health Planning and Administration. Although, retired since 2011 she's still very active in Revival of Mesei Projects and Positive Human and Cultural Development in the Community.
