SDSU Bachelors Cohort Begin Disability in Society Course

Dr. Theresa Lally and SDSU bachelors student during the class break at PCC Mesekiu Bai

Palau Community College in collaboration with San Diego State University began another course for the 29 students in the Bachelors program.

Dr. Theresa Lally was on campus to facilitate the course on "Disability in Society" (GS 420). The course provides various approach or theory to redefine legal and historical aspect of individual with disabilities. Students are expected to read and understand "Code of Conduct" in order to appreciate and understand people with disability in our community.

There are 19 courses to complete in order for student to receive a bachelor of arts degree. Students are currently on their 10th course of the program with the final exam and final research paper due on December 01, 2019. PCC wishes all students in the program much success in the coming weeks.

DIABETES SELF-MANAGEMENT

Diabetes Self-Management is a magazine that is devoted to managing the effects of diabetes on everyday life. The magazine publishes self-care tips, articles on diabetes research, and diabetes-friendly recipes. Diabetes Self-Management is known well for publishing helpful self-care tips. One recent article talks about why it is important to manage blood pressure and blood cholesterol levels as carefully as blood glucose levels. One helpful entry titled "Travelling with Diabetes" instructs readers on how they can make it through plane trips and long vacations without eating the wrong foods or going without important pieces of monitoring equipment.
