Institutional Effectiveness Training Held at PCC Assembly Hall

Inset: Institutional Research & Evaluation Director, Deikola Olikong and Institutional Effectiveness Training participants

Institutional Research and Evaluation Office conducted a two-days training for faculty and professional staff from non-instructional and administrative areas of the college on August 3rd and 4th. The training was a Part 2 of the training conducted in the Spring semester that took place in April, 2017.

At the training, faculty, staff and administrators went through Ten Big Ideas of how to use assessment results for decision-making, resource allocations, and making best implementations to ensure student learning and success. The first day of the training allowed faculty and staff more time to discuss best practices, ways to make improvements, as well as how to help one another to ensure student learning and success. Second day was focused on the overall 2016-2017 ISSA results, student succession rate after the college dismantled developmental courses EN95 and MA95, ACCJC Standard I.B.6, and revisions of the FAMED grid for course assessment that will be implemented in Fall 2017.
