On January 21, 2020 Palau Community College staff and students were treated to a dauntingly beautiful, elegant and downright powerful concert by Hungarian musician Jozsef Terek using Tarogato, commonly known as Turkish pipe. The popular Hungarian performer has appeared both on TV Duna-Kivansagkosar show and Radio Dankó. His career started 27 years ago in Tápiószéle, but since then, he's been to stages of Europe, America and Asia, he represented Hungary in 35 other countries, played at festivals, theatre plays and universities, attended composer contests and professional conferences. He's also been nominated several times to the UK Songwriting Contest and the International Songwriting competition with his own compositions. He is a member in many folkdance groups, and is a returning musician to many international festivals. He taught Hungarian folksong for 5 years in a folk camp in Seattle, USA. PCC thanks Mr. Jozsef Terek for sharing his musical talent with the PCC family.

Palau Community College is an accessible comprehensive public educational institution helping to meet the technical, academic, cultural, social, and economic needs of students and communities by promoting learning opportunities and developing personal excellence.
